This school year more than 40,000 students, from elementary through high-school grades, are competing for honors at the various music meets. In the March issue of the LEAGUER, the State Office warned high-school boys with remaining eligibility not to accept plane, bus or railroad tickets for the purpose of securing or qualifying for a college athletic scholarship. The acceptance of such valuable consideration would be considered grounds for a protest under the provision of the

We regret that some colleges have adopted the methods of the professional football teams in their recruiting campaigns. The vicious practice of inviting high-school boys to a football "try-out" without consulting the school administrator and the classroom teacher is arousing the enmity of high-school coaches and school administrators throughout the state. Who is the final loser in this deal? In our opinion, it is the boy. Only recently a district executive committee declared several boys ineligible for the remainder of their high-school careers because they had gone to a college campus for football "tryouts."

The Legislative Advisory Council, in a strongly-worded resolution last year, asked the colleges to refrain from soliciting boys still in high school. In order to protect the eligibility of the boys remaining in high school and the immediate standing of the school, district committees will be forced to declare all boys accepting invitations to "tryouts" ineligible to represent the high school.

This has been a fine Interscholastic League year. There has been increased participation in all phases of the League program from the grade school contests through the junior and senior high school. The credit for this excellent year goes to all those classroom teachers, coaches and school administrators who have worked so diligently organizing the committees, planning the local meets and serving as judges and officials, in addition to coaching the many contestants. We wish to thank all of those who have had a part in organizing and promoting the League program in the State.

The British Way

"British influence in the world of sport has been great. Certainly during the 19th century our sportsmen fired the Western World with their enthusiasm for football, lawn tennis, soccer, and golf. The origins of these games go back, of course, to very ancient times; it is stated that the original inhabitants of this island learned how to play football from the Romans, although our friends across the Irish Sea claim that they played a form of the game in Ireland before Julius Caesar set his foot on British soil.

"Edward II forbade the game in consequence of 'the great noise in the city caused by hustling over a half centuries later, in his Anatomie of Abuses (1583), refers to football as 'a develishe pastime cour, and malice, and sometimes brawling, murther, homicide, and great effusion of blood, as experience daily teacheth.' Certainly the Elizabethans were lusty fellows.

"Modern footbali became widespread in the middle of the 19th century. There is a good description of the game as played at Rugby in Tom Brown's School Britain and the United States was English Rugby was first played at National Geographic Magazine, April, 1949.
