Basis Of Responsibility

The superintendent is responsible for enforcing League Rules. This is a responsibility he can not delegate when a violation occurs.

The school board, the coach, the high school principal all are responsible to the superintendent to see that the League rules are followed, both in spirit and in letter. However, school boards are not held responsible for League rules.

The League rules specifically state that the superintendent of schools is the one person to whom the League looks for enforcement of its rules. Further, the Supreme Court of Texas has upheld this administra- TRACK, FIELD REPORTS tive procedure, by ruling 8 to 0 on the "Oil Bowl Case" on Feb. 25, 1953. This ruling struck down the opposition's contention that the superintendent had no right to bind the school board and the district in refusing the school board the right to lease the high school stadium to Midwestern University for the purpose of staging the "Oil Bowl Game," in violation of the League's All-Star Game Rule. Once a school becomes a League member, the superintendent has, as far as the League is concerned, final authority.

A Changing Situation

1. Often, the office of the school superintendent is no longer in the high school building. Consequently, the superintendent may lose touch with what is happening in high school and after school.

2. Frequently, the high school principal finds he is just a "hired hand," as are his coach and band director. In most instances, he has no say in employing either the band director or coach, who are responsible only to the superintendent. Most often, principals are "career men" who stay in one position for many years, while coaches and band directors

3. Then, too, the principal is frequently selected for his ability to get along with the teachers and other staff members. Among these are coaches and band directors. The principal has no desire to "cross" either of these, since both men have large group organizations on public display every Friday night.

4. The principal hesitates to involve his school in controversy with another member school. Consequently, he prefers to compromise some of the issues rather than to protest. In the back of his mind is the thought that he may some day find himself in the same spot and need a "sympathetic glow" from his fellow principals.

5. The principal realizes that the superintendent has final authority on school policy matters and penalties against member schools and knows that he has only delegated authority to oversee certain aspects of the interscholastic program.

6. With the rapidly changing situation in administration of high school affairs, superintendents must decide who is going to run and who is to be responsible for the complicated set of rules and regulations adopted to control interschool competitions.

Jr. High Athletics Local

Recently, the need for limiting the number of football and basketball games which junior high school boys may play has been discussed in some sectors. Some specific points mentioned were:

(a) An excessive amount of school time is lost when games are played on school nights.

(b) The injury rate among younger boys subjected to contact contests such as football is higher.

(c) Many communities tend to over emphasize junior high school athletics.

Neither junior high school football nor junior high school basketball are part of the League program. Junior high schools do not accept the athletic plans for the reason that school administrators have through of mistreatment of game officials. the years refused to permit control of these sports to get beyond the local community. School administrators have contended, and rightly so, Football Number that junior high school athletic competitions are local events and should tion 4, Article I, will be amended as follows be organized and conducted on the local level. Thus, if the local schools want a schedule requiring that all games be Thus, if the local schools want a schedule requiring that all games be players occupying the offensive positions of center, guard and tackle wear numbers from 50 through 79. Upon request of an official, the offensive field captain shall In some school systems, the games are arranged by grades, while in designate the center, guards and tackles on others the games are scheduled on a school-unit basis. Again, it is a matter of what best serves the local needs.

Any abuses in junior high school interscholastic athletics can readily and effectively be corrected by action of the local school board and the superintendents or principals who schedule and administer the program.

If all the football linemen were laid end to end, it would be a lot easier to score.

You sure better watch the driver of that car just behind the one in front of you.

Someday I'm going to write a book full of all the clever remarks I thought of the day after I needed them.

ILPC Convention Sets New Record

By DR. MAX R. HADDICK

Never before have so many attended an ILPC convention. Our best count shows that between 1,400 and 1,450 were here for the sessions. I had estimated that 700-800 would attend. It was a wonderful surprise.

Music Matters

Unwanted Rules Can Be Changed

By EDWIN E. CAIN

Frequently, in traveling throughout the state, I hear a few music directors lament, "This rule pertaining to [twirling, sightreading, etc.] is ridiculous. Why don't you fellows in Austin do something about it?" These directors are uninformed as to the procedure for changing rules.

First of all, "we fellows in Austin" have no authority to change any rule. The League program is operated on democratic principles. POSTSCRIPTS ON ATHLETICS BY DR. RHEA H. WILLIAMS

The district executive committees of the University Interscholastic League are the most democratic administrative organizations devised. This is local "grass-roots" control at its best.

Criticism of centralized state control in various departments and bureaus is common. The League is often accused of concentrated autocratic administration. Nothing could be farther from the truth.

In the University Interscholastic League practically all of the administrative problems of the schools within the district are administered by the district executive committee.

The district executive committee is composed of either the superin- schedule for the approval of the extendent or principal from each of ecutive committee. There is a proper

Senatorial Courtesy

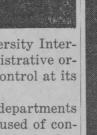

From the above explanation of how the district executive committee functions, it is obvious that each district is as good or as bad as its administrative leadership. If administrators in a district do not take an active part in the operation of the district, then inevitably situations arise which will eventually embarrass the member schools.

In districts where "senatorial courtesy" is practiced, and unfortunately this is true in some districts, this lack of integrity, sooner or later, creates serious problems. However, the majority of district executive committees have fine administrative leadership and do a commendable job in administering district affairs.
