JOHN MOORE
KEYNOTE SPEAKER

JOHN MOORE is a special correspondent for Getty Images. He has photographed in 65 countries on six continents and was posted internationally for 17 years, first to Nicaragua then India, South Africa, Mexico, Egypt and Pakistan. He returned to the U.S. in 2008. Moore has won top awards throughout his career, including the 2005 Pulitzer Prize for Breaking News Photography, World Press Photo honors, the John Faber Award and the Robert Capa Gold Medal from the Overseas Press Club, Photographer of the Year from Pictures of the Year International, the NPPA and Sony World Photography Organization. Moore is a graduate of Irving High School, where he photo edited the school newspaper the Tiger Rag and The Lair yearbook. He later graduated from the University of Texas at Austin, where he studied Radio-Television-Film. He lives with his family in Stamford, Connecticut.

UNDOCUMENTED

Senior staff photographer and special correspondent for Getty Images John Moore has focused on the issue of undocumented immigration to the United States for a decade. His efforts to humanize the immigrants on their journey as well as the U.S. federal agents tasked with deterring them sets his pictures apart. Moore has photographed the entire length of the U.S. southern border, and traveled extensively throughout Central America and Mexico, as well as to many immigrant communities in the United States. His work includes rare imagery of ICE raids and mass deportations and the resulting widespread fear in the immigrant community across the U.S. Undocumented: Immigration and the Militarization of the United States-Mexico Border was released by powerHouse Books in March 2018.

OUT OF STATE SPEAKERS

FEATURED SPEAKERS

LORI OGLESBEE

For the last 35 years, Lori Oglesbee advised more than 4,000 outstanding students at high school in Arkansas and Texas, including McKinney HS and Prosper HS. Her staffs created award-winning yearbooks, newspapers and online sites, taking top awards at both the state and national level. The 2005 Max R. Haddick Teacher of the Year and 2009 JEA National Yearbook Adviser works as an independent educational consultant teaching staffs without having to assign grades. She has advocated for New Voices legislation and student press rights. She uses Twitter to give pointers on writing: #WritingTipsFromMsO

CORRIE MACLAGGEN

Corrie MacLaggen is the managing editor of The Texas Tribune. Previously, the Austin native worked as a national correspondent for Reuters, writing and editing stories about Texas and nearby states and overseeing a network of freelance writers. Before joining Reuters, she covered Texas government and politics for the Austin American-Statesman. She spent her first year at the Statesman writing for the newspaper's weekly Spanish-language publication. She has also worked in Mexico City, where she wrote for publications including the Miami Herald's Mexico edition, Latin Trade magazine and the Jewish Telegraphic Agency. Her first reporting job was at the El Paso Times. Corrie is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where she studied journalism and Spanish. She got her start in journalism at Westlake High School in Austin; she was the Journalism Education Association's 1998 national high school journalist of the year.

GARY LUNDGREN

Gary Lundgren is responsible for running all contest and critique programs at National Scholastic Press Association. He also helps with convention programming and membership outreach. Before joining NSPA, Gary served as the senior marketing manager for Jostens, Inc. since 1997. From 1988-1997, he worked as director of student publications at the University of Arkansas and directed the Arkansas High School Press Association. Prior to Arkansas, he served as executive director of South Dakota High School Press Association at South Dakota State University. Lundgren has been awarded the NSPA Pioneer Award, Columbia Scholastic Press Association Gold Key, Journalism Education Association Medal of Merit, South Dakota High School Press Association Founders Award and Interscholastic League Press Conference Edith Fox King Award.
