

Photo by: Kaitlyn Killian

Photo by: Claire Hendricks

Photo by: Sloan Coffey

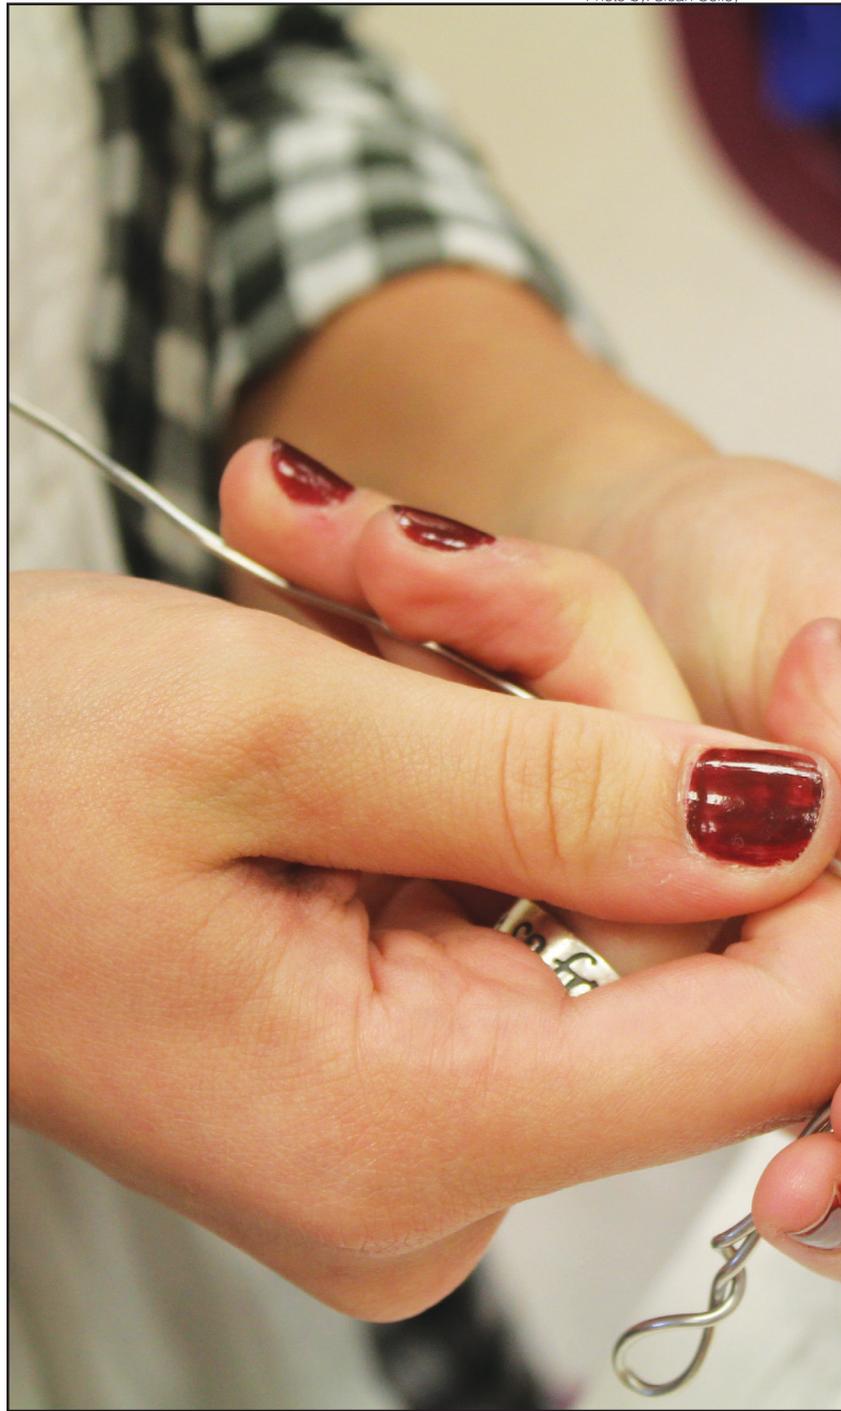

Photo by: Sloan Coffey

1..2..3..trekeva cottedge (16), hannah jean (17), elizabeth bridges (18) and ayreana smith (18) test their homemade pinhole camera for photo journalism.

Photo by: Sloan Coffey

piece of work rameen imran (15) carefully works to create a foundation for what will become a vase.

"Art classes allow us to release our creativity and relax in the middle of a school day. Art has been such a blessing throughout my high school career. I'm so thankful to have been apart of an amazing art department."

kat sokol (16)

1. madalyn garrett ('16) embraces Mrs. christine killian as she learns that she has been awarded the Visual Arts Scholastic Gold Seal Award. "It was entirely unbelievable," Garrett said. "It was a rush. All my work had finally paid off." 2. Laying on the floor to learn about taking photos from a unique angle, Mrs. paige dyer explains photography elements to her photo journalism class. "This class is so much fun, looking at the world from a different view is such an amazing feat," abigail killian ('18) said. 3. carter henderson ('16) and taylor lonneberg ('15) focus on a dandelion and try to capture it using the photo elements they learned in Journalism.

Photo by: Sloan Coffey

the perfect point Pre-Drill students work to stretch their legs to gain the perfect splits for drill team tryouts in December. "The focus isn't on how far you can kick, it's on the perfect form," jessica gargus ('17) said.

WRANGLIN' THOSE wires

During her advanced art class, Rannah jean ('17) creates a hand made piece wired structure. The wire shape is only the foundation for what it will be. "I love to do any art at every chance I get," said Jean. "Creating something allows for my personality to shine through."

Photo by: Sloan Coffey

Photo by: Sloan Coffey

1. In shaneka griggs ('17) Pre-Drill class, she worked on her leaps and kicks to better herself for her second attempt at tryouts for Drill Team. "Every time Mrs. Norman corrects my pose I say yes ma'am and thank you," Griggs said. "I really appreciate everything she has done for me and that she believed in me." After two and a half years of practice and corrections, Griggs wowed the judges and took her place on the 2015-2016 Drill Team. 2. The Art Society tie dyes shirts to wear on their trip to Disney World. "I had never tie dyed a t-shirt and it was even more exciting knowing that we would be going around Disney World in the shirts we made ourselves," cayla kook ('17) said. "We could hardly wait to be there."

Photo by: Kaitlyn Killian

Photo by: Sloan Coffey

3. cameron humphress ('18) twirls around the dance studio, indulging in her passion. "I enjoy ballet because I can express my emotions through my movements," Humphress said. "I have been dancing for several years and I love it."